About Our Veterinarians:

Dr. Julianne Horner is a 2015 graduate of Oregon State University's Carlson College of Veterinary Medicine. She continued her post-graduate training by completing a small animal internship. In addition, Dr. Horner completed a one year internship training under a Board-Certified Veterinary Internist.

Dr. Horner is originally from San Jose, California and attended college at the University of California Davis, where she obtained a B.S. in Biologic Sciences in 2008. She always felt deeply connected to animals, but it wasn't until after college when she worked as a veterinary assistant in a general practice, with animals undergoing cancer treatment that, she realized she could combine her interest in science with her desire to help animals and her community by pursuing a career in veterinary medicine.

Dr. Stanley Sohn is a 1973 graduate of Purdue University where he earned his Doctor of Veterinary Medicine. In 1975 Dr. Sohn opened the Mansfield Animal Hospital.

Dr. Sohn is a native of Milton, Massachusetts. He always had an interest in caring for animals. As a young child, he would take in injured animals and help them before releasing them back into their natural environment. During his school years, Dr. Sohn volunteered at the Blue Hill's Trailside Museum.

About Our Affiliated Veterinarians:

Dr. Alan Glazer graduated from Tufts University School of Veterinary Medicine in 2000. He completed a small animal internship at the Veterinary Referral and Emergency Center in Norwalk, CT. Dr. Glazer became board-certified in internal medicine in 2007

Dr. Dave Clark is a board-certified surgeon who provides his services to veterinary hospitals in Rhode Island and Massachusetts. Before he began traveling from clinic to clinic, he was employed as the head of surgery at the College of Veterinary Medicine at Oklahoma State University.
